

PAM MCKISSICK

Pam McKissick is the former co-owner and CEO of Williams, Williams & McKissick, LLC, (WWM), one of the largest, most cutting edge and diverse auction firms in the United States. WWM is the parent company to Williams & Williams® Worldwide Real Estate Auction, Auction Network® and Williams Worldwide Real Estate Brokerage.

A seasoned businesswoman, marketing executive and radio host, McKissick is known for her charismatic personality and uncanny ability to transform traditional thinking and chart new paths toward personal and professional growth.

McKissick has a successful track record of building organizations into major brands. She joined Williams & Williams in 2005 as Chief Operating Officer and built a sustainable business model that afforded the company year-over-year expansion and diversification. In 2007, McKissick founded Auction Network® (www.auctionnetwork.com), a 24-hour streaming television network that allows viewers to participate remotely in live auctions taking place throughout the world and bid interactively, in real time. In 2010, McKissick entered into an equal partnership with Dean Williams, and became co-owner and CEO of Williams, Williams & McKissick.

McKissick's colorful career spans a wide variety of industries, from broadcasting to advertising, science to seminary, and from radio to real estate, including high-profile stints at Walt Disney Studios, TV Guide Networks, and WNEW-FM Metromedia New York. A woman of great character, determination, ironic insight, intelligence and creativity, Pam motivates anyone whose career or life is at a standstill, to seize opportunity, embrace change and achieve success.

McKissick resides with her partner, Cheryl Gregory, on an 80-acre horse ranch in Tulsa, Oklahoma.
